 An Acre of Paint.
 The panorama of London painted in 1820 by Mr. Horner covered over an acre of canvas.

Sure Way.
 "Senator, I wish you'd recommend this young man for office."
 "But I know of no office I could get him."
 "That's all right. I don't really want him to get any office. But he wants to marry my daughter, and if he has done anything shady in the past I'd like to have the facts brought out."—Louisville Courier-Journal.
Proof.
 "I guess the wife is home all right."
 "What makes you think so?"
 "I've been trying to get the house on the phone for three-quarters of an hour and the line has been busy all the time."—Detroit Free Press.

A Prison Punster.
 "The close confinement," said the prison visiting justice to a hardened old convict, "must affect you greatly."
 "Yes," replied the facetious convict. "I find prison bars somewhat grating."
 "Ah, life to you is evidently a failure," was the visitor's further comment.
 "Yes, it's nothing but a cell," said the convict.—Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph.

Reckless.
 "Perhaps it is just as well that wives do not always know how husbands disburse their funds."
 "How now?"
 "My wife would have a fit if she knew I spent my 15 cents lunch money for a sandwich and a ten cent cigar."—Pittsburgh Post.

Improvements.
 "Now that you have leisure you can improve your mind."
 "I suppose so," replied Dustin Stax. "But a good mind is sometimes like a good piece of property. Overanxiety to improve it may spoil it."—Washington Star.

Time is not money when you spend a dollar to save a penny.

Second Sight.
 An Irishman and his English friend were out rabbit shooting. They had been very unsuccessful and were returning, downhearted, when they saw a hare dart out of the hedge.
 Mike, in amazement, failed to shoot, and the hare escaped.
 "Why didn't you shoot it?" asked the Englishman.
 "Shure," said Mike, "I didn't see it till it was out of sight."—London Telegraph.

Something Easier.
 Neither the bride nor the bridegroom knew much about housekeeping. He was helping with the Sunday dinner and had split about a thousand peas with a carving knife. Then he spoke up:
 "Darling?"
 "Yes, dear?"
 "Don't let's have split pea soup. Let's have mashed potatoes."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Gladstone's One Pun.
 It is not generally known that Gladstone once in his life made a pun. When Blondin appeared at the Crystal palace he went to see the acrobat and remarked that the performance was very interesting to a chancellor of the exchequer as an example of balancing.—London Standard.
